Peer review

Jonathan has great coding habits (very modular functions with followed coding conventions), the determination to create a high-quality and complex app (took care of security issues, proper separation of concerns, non-trivial features); thoroughly tested implemented features and contributed to the design of good-looking and well considered UI.

Saadiyah has great design skills (carefully thought about design and all edge cases before the actual implementation of the data type), well commented code, big contribution to the documentation and good-looking UI.

Zulsar has excellent coding, designing, debugging and leadership skills (caught and fixed most of the encountered bugs, fixed concurrency issues and race conditions), overall led and guided through the development of the app, wrote very clean and well commented code, extensively tested the entire app, put up the fundament of the UI.
